

The Medical Bulletins are regional business newspapers for physicians in the select marketplaces of Virginia, Washington, D.C., and Maryland. The publications are distributed to all physicians in their given marketplaces as a complimentary information channel, reaching a far broader audience than regional organization's member publications.

Your ad in any one or combination of The Medical Bulletins reaches an ideal niche market of physicians and key decision makers in their local medical communities, a group with an established reputation for buying power.

Medical professionals turn to The Medical Bulletin for an in-depth view of the current trends and players affecting their practice of medicine.

The Medical Bulletin focuses on topics such as practice management, new technologies, managed care, finance, and real estate, providing a distilled compilation of news and information specific to the medical community. Each edition also provides regional medical society news and events, local physicians in the news and local hospital news.
